

SHUCK MEMORIAL DEDICATION IN FALL

Ceremonies Probably Will Be at Time of the Missouri-Kansas Game.

FUNDS BEING SOUGHT

C. E. Barkshire, in Letter to Classmates, Recalls Service of 1911 Captain.

The proposed memorial to Glenn B. Shuck, former football captain who died recently in Hannibal, probably will be dedicated at the time of the Missouri-Kansas football game next fall. Prof. L. M. De-foe and Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics, will decide what form the memorial will take. They will also have entire charge of all funds collected.

Charles E. Barkshire, A. B. '11, manager of the University Co-Operative Store, is starting a campaign to raise the necessary funds. Mr. Barkshire was yell leader during the seasons of 1910 and 1911. He is sending copies of the following letter to all members of the class of 1911, as well as to all M men for the years 1908, '09, '10 and '11:

Saved the Day in 1911.

"To the Classmates of 'Jimmy' Shuck:

"Glenn B. Shuck is dead. "You all knew 'Jimmy'—Jimmy, who carried the University's colors to many victories in track and football—Jimmy who saved the day in the 1911 football game with Kansas. You remember? It was he who made what seemed impossible, possible. He tied the score. And how?

"There was a man on the 1911 football team who knew that some time a victory would depend on a true toe. That man was not a punter. But every morning for a whole season, getting up early, he practiced. And the time did come. It was toward the close of the 1911 Kansas game, Kansas ahead three points, Missouri down in Kansas territory at a seemingly impossible angle, right on the side lines. There was a chance, only one, for a drop kick, and the man I am writing about took it. He took it and won. He tied the score. He saved Missouri from defeat.

"That man was Jimmy Shuck.

A Man Who Didn't Complain.

"We all knew Jimmy, and we all loved him. Who wouldn't? Big, open-hearted Jimmy Shuck. Jimmy, who never complained. In the Ames game in 1911 he received a severe kick in the back. Not a whimper. That wasn't Jimmy's way. He just stayed in the game and played on.

"And Jimmy is dead.

"We have all lost a friend. Perhaps, he was sacrificed to football. Who knows? For the sacrifice he made for the honor of our Alma Mater, good friends and true of him who was a good friend and true, are to erect a memorial as a tribute to him, a friend. This letter is to ask your assistance. Any contributions, no matter how small, will be appreciated as a token of esteem to him whom we all knew and loved. Kindly fill in and return the enclosed card today."

ITALIANS MAY BESIEGE TRIESTE

Austrian Port on the Adriatic Is One of the Largest Petroleum Refineries and Naval Storehouses.

A few days ago the Italian fleet sailed under sealed orders. Where these ships are going only the government officials know. Some declare that before long one may expect to hear of them as helping the army in a siege of Trieste. The army is marching down from the north and is at present engaged with the Austrians at Goritz, which is only fifty miles north of the city.

Trieste, the ancient rival and foe of Venice, is the objective point of the present Italian campaign. If it should fall, Austria would be cut off from one of its largest petroleum refineries as well as from its best seaport and naval storehouse. Only after a desperate struggle will the Italians be able to occupy this important place.

City Is Opposite Venice.

The Adriatic at its north end forms, in general, a large u-shaped curve. On the west side of this curve is the beautiful city of Venice. Occupying a corresponding position on the eastern curve, sixty miles away, is Trieste. The rivalry between these two ports has always been intense. In 1203 the Venetians captured their rival and monopolized all its trade.

For 180 years Trieste struggled against this restraint, and at the end of that time was taken under the protection of Austria. Since then it has gradually outstripped its opponent and at the opening of this last operation with L. V. Crandall, farm adviser of Buchanan County.

A drain pipe has been installed behind the old home plate on Rollins Field. Drainage conditions there have war it controlled practically all the trade in the Adriatic.

Aside from its maritime activities Trieste is important for its factories. It possesses Austria's largest ship building yards, where naval as well as merchant vessels are built. The iron foundries, chemical works, machine shops and petroleum refineries also are important. Railroads from the richest provinces in Bohemia and Austria center in this seaport city.

Greek Church There Is Famous.

Among the interesting features to the tourists or the historian is the Greek church. It was built in 1782 and is one of the finest Byzantine structures in all Austria. Other famous buildings are the cathedral of San Guisto, the church of Sant' Antonio Nuovo, and the Castle. This Castle is supposed to be the site of the old Roman capitol.

Four miles to the northeast stands the obelisk at Opicina, which is almost 1200 feet high. Overlooking the sea four miles to the northwest, is the beautiful castle of Miramar, the former home of Maximilian, the ill-fated emperor of Mexico. It is with a feeling of relief that one reads of the orders of the Italian government to its commanders that all points of historical interest must be spared.

Many in Trieste are glad to hear of the approach of the Italians. Of the 200,000 occupants more than half are native Italians. The general aspect of the town is much more Italian than German.

been such that after a hard rain, the cinder track in that portion of the field has been flooded with water.

PERSONALITY

Personality is as much a success building factor with merchandise as it is with men.

Advertising an article or a business gives it a personality. Or rather makes its personality known to the public—for after all, advertising is only a mirror held up to the merchandise.

A trade-mark becomes valuable only as it is made to individualize the thing for which it stands.

People are attracted to advertised goods just as they are drawn toward a magnetic man or woman.

Well directed advertising in the daily newspaper that people buy and believe in is the greatest builder of business confidence ever known.

A majority of the best people in and around Columbia buy and believe in advertising space in the University Missourian—they like it personally.
